INTRODUCTION

It is with much joy and anticipation that we look forward to celebrating 175 years of Haggs Parish Church throughout 2015. Despite the current trend of declining membership and closure of churches, we at Haggs can be justly proud of our history and that we continue to flourish as a church serving our local communities.

Events are planned for each month of our celebration year with something for everyone and we hope that our church members and the wider community, including our local primary schools, will be able at some time to join in our celebrations.

Special events from our programme are:

- A visit of the moderator of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland on Sunday 15th when the Right Reverend John Chalmers will preach.
- A celebration dinner to be held at the Castlecary Hotel on 15th June.
- A service on 19th July to celebrate, to the day in 1840, 175 years of Haggs Parish Church. Former ministers and office bearers will be invited to join us on that day.

A lot of hard work, time and effort has been put in to prepare for the celebration of 175 years of our church. A special thank you goes to the “175” team and to the many people who have helped in any way. Without the dedication of these people who gave so freely of their time and talents the celebration programme would not be realised.

You will read in our interesting history that the church in Haggs was established in 1840 as a Chapel of Ease dependent on Denny Parish Church.

2015 will also see the retiral of our minister Rev. Helen Christie. At that time Haggs Parish Church will become linked with Denny Old Parish which really brings us full circle back to our roots and our beginning. We have come a long way since 1840 and with the support from Denny, whilst continuing to keep our own identity, we look forward in faith to growing and having a fulfilling future at Haggs.

Let us give thanks for those who have shaped our history over the past 175 years. Let us look boldly forward with the continued presence of Haggs Parish Church bearing Christian witness serving and caring for the people in our community.

Murray McCheyne, Session Clerk (Pro tem)

FROM THE MANSE

A short comment from the present minister, Rev. Helen F Christie BD

As we celebrate the 175th Anniversary of Haggs Parish Church I give thanks for the privilege I have been given to serve as one of the nineteen ministers who have shared in the life and witness of the congregation over the years. At this time of celebration, as we give thanks for this place of worship, let us remember and give thanks for people who have been part of the body of Christ in this place.

I pray that, with the aid of the Holy Spirit, this community of faith will continue to worship and serve our Lord Jesus Christ in this parish and beyond.

My thanks go to all who have helped prepare for this time of celebration and pray that it will be a time of rejoicing and fellowship for all.

Helen

HAGGS PARISH CHURCH 1840 - 2015

Haggs Parish Church lies at the western end of Falkirk Presbytery, its Parish boundary linking with that of Glasgow Presbytery. In 1838 most of the people living in Haggs were nominal members of the established Church of Scotland but their nearest place of worship was Denny Parish Church, about three miles away. The minister of that church, the Rev. John Dempster was determined that Haggs should have its own place of worship. On 23rd April 1839 a petition from William Forbes of Callender and the Rev. John Dempster was presented to the Presbytery of Stirling. It sought permission to build a church in Haggs as a Chapel of Ease, dependent on Denny Parish Church, since, at that time Haggs was part of the Parish of Denny. Permission was given and plans and estimates for the building and its furnishings were approved in October 1839. Its Deed of Constitution of 1840 authorised William Forbes of Callender and the Rev. John Dempster, Minister of Denny to establish a church in Haggs. On the 19th July 1840, the new church was opened.

On the 14th January 1841, Stirling Presbytery met in the new church to ordain the Rev. Colin McCulloch to be minister of the Church and Parish of Haggs, functioning as a Chapel of Ease, attached to the Parish of Denny. Four elders of Denny Parish Church; Robert Sneddon, John Gray, John Cousland and David Shaw, were installed as members of the first Haggs Kirk Session. Mr Alexander Ure, a teacher in Haggs Parish School, was appointed as Session Clerk. In 1844 the Rev. McCulloch left to become the minister of Denny Parish Church. This happened because, following the Disruption of 1843, the Rev. Dempster became the first Free Church minister in Denny.

The fourth minister was the Rev. Thomas Logan who was ordained in March 1860. He was a young and active minister who wished to see Haggs become an independent church. Sadly he died in August 1864. He had expressed a desire to be buried at Haggs and in 1864 he was buried in the porch of the Church. A memorial stone was mounted on the wall of the vestibule. The stone was later removed and can be seen today on the wall outside to the left of the vestibule when entering.

On the 18th January 1875 the Church and Parish of Haggs was established. This meant that Haggs was disjointed from Denny and given equal status. Endowments were set up to provide a stipend of £100 per annum. At that time there were 235 Communicants and an average income for the previous five years of £49 for seat rents and almost £37 for offerings. This gave a total income of about £86 per annum. The value of the Church and manse was put at £1,972 and the annual cost of maintenance at £4.10/-.

Perhaps the most notable ministry at Haggs was that of the Rev. Alexander Robertson. He was ordained and inducted to the parish on the 7th November 1877 and continued there as minister till his death on the 20th February 1919. During that time the number of members on the Church Roll rose to 509 and the number who attended Communion services rose from 170 to 207. In 1881 he asked to have an organ installed in the Church but that request was refused due to lack of funds. Eight years later Mr A H Boyle of Banknock House offered to give a gift of an American organ if the Kirk Session cared to accept it. This was done after consultation with the Presbytery. In 1891 Mr Robertson formed a Band of Hope in the village of Haggs.

Moving into the 1900's we learn of the minister reporting to the Kirk Session on his meeting with the local Electricity Company concerning the supply of electricity to the church. A quote for £48.00 for installing lighting "inclusive of globes, shades and two radiators" was accepted from a Glasgow firm. In April 1903, the Rev. John Livingstone of Banton Parish Church opened a Sunday School in the Banknock School. There were 70 children present and at that time Mr Livingstone intended to start a Sunday service there. The Sunday School closed in 1961 due to lack of numbers, owing to most of the population moving east.

The Church was closed temporarily in 1913 for renovation, during which time the services were held in in the Russell Memorial Hall. The building underwent extensive alterations and redecoration. Probably before this time the pulpit was placed centrally on the north wall with pews on each side of a central raised chancel. The present arrangement came into being in 1928 when the Communion Table was dedicated, the elders' chairs being dedicated a year later. At that same time a pipe organ, costing £13.50 was purchased and installed. It served the congregation until 1963 when it, in turn was replaced.

In 1943 we learn of a soldier on active service in North Africa applying for membership at Haggs. He was accepted after the Session's approval of a covering letter from his Padre confirming his attendance at communion classes. In those days new members were given a six month probationary period and failure to maintain a good standard of Christian life could have serious consequences.

In 1945 the subject of women being ordained to the eldership was first raised and was rejected. It would be a further 33 years before the first lady elders were ordained. They were Miss J Leishman, Miss E Shearer and Mrs S Swan.

In the late 1940's, the Church established a Sunday School in Allandale Bowling Club and it was run by Mr Willie Weir.

In February 1955, Haggs Parish Church bought the Russell Memorial Hall to be used as a Church Hall. It was erected in 1893 by the people of the district in memory of Mr James Russell of Longcroft, who had left £100 and a free site beside the church for its erection. The hall long continued to be the centre of all social activities in the district. During the Second World War it was taken over by the War Department who allowed it to fall into disrepair. In the end it passed into the hands of the Russell family which put it in order again and it once more became the centre of social affairs. Mr J Russell Jnr could not continue to afford its upkeep and so the church bought it. It required quite a lot of work to make it suitable for the church's purposes and at times was used as classrooms for Longcroft school.

After two years of consideration, a Woman's Guild was founded in 1952. In 1970 the MacLean Hall was built and dedicated to the memory of Dr. Ian MacLean who had been an elder for 20 years and whose father had been headmaster of Longcroft school. The 37 Club, a fellowship for men, was established in 1985, the name coming from the street address of the Church.

Mrs Susan Swan, one of our elders, led a group of young people through the Duke of Edinburgh award scheme. In 1979 her son Bruce won the Gold award. This was the first of many to come to Hags and was the first in the Church of Scotland.

During the period 1978 to 1991 Hags was linked to the charge at Dennyloanhead, during which the minister had to share his time between two congregations, Kirk Sessions and Congregational Boards. The link was dissolved in 1991 and Hags was once again allowed to call its own minister as an independent congregation.

In 2011 the Churches in the Denny area were instructed by Falkirk Presbytery to agree a plan which would result in the number of ministers in the area reducing from five to four. After much debate and discussion and taking into consideration retirements and transfers, it was agreed in 2014 that Hags would form a linkage with Denny Old, this becoming effective in 2015, the year of our anniversary. We have therefore gone full circle in 175 years.

Since Colin McCulloch in 1841 we have had nineteen ministers, including Helen Christie, our first woman minister, who joined us on the 9th December 1998. The Hags Parish Church of today is a vibrant and active community of faith. We still use the original buildings and the maintenance costs are a bit more than Mr Paul's £4.50 per annum.

The Parish covers an area of approximately six square miles serving a population of roughly five thousand five hundred in the Communities of Coneypark, Banknock, Hags, Longcroft, Dennyloanhead, Allandale and Head of Muir.

We have regular services of worship and a number of youth and adult organisations. The finances of the Church are looked after by the Congregational Board while the spiritual well-being of our members is taken care of by the Minister and Kirk Session.

A warm welcome is extended to all who enter our buildings and we encourage everyone to come along and share our services and join our organisations. Hags church is alive and well and we look forward to welcoming you

SCHOOLS

Hags Church School was in existence in the early 19th century and pre-dates the Church. It was built under the auspices of the Education Committee of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland. It was a little to the west of the Church and on the opposite side of the road. It can be seen on the 1850 map of the area. There was a house and garden beside it for the teacher. One of the teachers was Mr Ure from Stenhousemuir who became the first Session Clerk. The school was closed in 1876 and the pupils transferred to the new Longcroft School. A carved stone from the school can be seen outside the MacLean Hall with the words Church School, Hags, 1839 inscribed on it.

Banknock School was opened by the Kilsyth Landward School Board at Hollandbush in January 1900. It was situated a little to the east of the Hollandbush Inn on the opposite side of the road near a row of miner's houses called the Pink Row. By 1902 the school had more children than the accommodation could handle. A new school was built to the west of the Hollandbush Inn and was completed in January 1903. It was closed in June 1964, after an existence of over 60 years and the pupils transferred to Longcroft School. The buildings were leased in 1965 to firm manufacturing washing machines.

Longcroft School was originally situated near Anderson Terrace, Longcroft. By 1860 it was felt that there was a need for a new school. It was decided that the existing school and Banknock School would be replaced by a single new school to serve the district. This new school was built opposite the Russell Memorial Hall at Hags and was opened in March 1876. It was extended in 1891 with a further extension being built in 1894. In January 1895 there were 441 names on the roll. For a time the Russell Memorial Hall was used as an extension to the school. A new infant department was built and opened in late 1912. Further additions were made in 1924 and 1926. In 1947 Longcroft became a Junior Secondary School. This was closed in June 1959, when the Secondary section was moved to the new Denny High School. In August 1964 the pupils of Banknock School came to Longcroft, which was now only a Primary School. It remained open until June 1965 at which time the new Bankier School was opened.

Bankier School was opened in 1965 and stands on the site of the old Bankier House. The school celebrates its fiftieth anniversary in 2015, the same year as the Church celebrates its one hundred and seventy fifth anniversary.
